

Writing, writing, writing!

I have noticed that at times you like to be on your own and my observations of you show that you appear to be at ease when you are engaged in some sort of mark making activity. What is it about these mark making activities that you enjoy? Do they help you to relax? The hustle and bustle of the noise around you does not seem to distract you and you appear in a world of your own. I wonder what is going on in your mind? You are able to create marks using a range of tools and hold the pen correctly. When you have finished, you look up and if an adult is nearby say “I’ve done my writing.”

What does this tell me about you?

J you enjoy time by yourself and have good control over mark making media. The noise in the background does not distract you when you are engaged in something that you enjoy and you have good concentration skills.

Next Steps: To provide you with a variety of mark making media in different situations.
